

Supporting Unaccompanied Immigrant Children:

Best Practices for Child Protection, Prevention, and Child Welfare Professionals

TOPICS ADDRESSED

Learn about who unaccompanied children (UCs) are, including reasons for migration and the sponsor vetting and reunification process.

Understand how migration, trauma, family separation, reunification, and systems-related fear may shape children and families' engagement with child welfare systems.

Explore how UC cases may present in child welfare practice, including safety, maltreatment, and placement concerns, as well as barriers to disclosure.

Identify trauma-informed strategies and cultural considerations, including trust-building, interviewing approaches, and cross-system collaboration.
